Changing Seasons

Full soon the shade trees will be green, the icebergs will be gone; and we shall push the old machine across the whiskered lawn. The furnace, in whose maw we've burned a thousand tons of slate, will have the rest it's surely earned, till summer oulls its freight. The day grows long and short the night, and man may save his roll, nor cough up for electric light what didn't go for, coal. We'll leave the shovel in the bin, among the dust and slate, and in the garden we'll begin to labor soon-and late. We'll plant the locust and the larch, in which the birds will sing, and bless the blooming blasts of March, which usher in the spring. The trees which bear the luscious fruits, we'll guard from pests and snares, and gladly plant our ginseng roots, and groom our Belgian hares. Ah, life is life, when spring arrives! To stir the scented soil we work our daughters and our wives, and boss them as they toil! Citizens' Association Also, by Reso-'Tis grateful to the soul, indeed. it soothes the nerves that ache, to watch the women sow the seed, and ply the hoe and rake. It cheers the heart of any man to sit around and smoke, while Julia Jane and Mary Ann plant spud and artichoke. WALT MASON.

Chief Justice Covington at the request of Assistant United States Attorney Hawken raised the bail of Dewell to $8,000. A new bond was furnished and the accused released pending action on a motion for a new trial, which will be filed by his counsel, Attorneys Frederick R. Whippler and Wilton J. Lambert.

The three offenses of which the soldier was convicted took place in one night, one on I street near Gonzaga College, another on the Union Station plaza and the third attempt in front of the drinking fountain in the rear of the drinking fountain in the rear of Congressional Library, on 2d street

The finding of a watch which had been taken from one of the victims led to the arrest of Dewell, who it was said had given it to a comrade to pawn.

The Baxter, on her way from Port Tampa, Fla., to Baltimore with phosphate rock, ran into a hurricane and was dismasted. Her boats were carried away and as she was leaking badly her crew accepted the offer of a passing steamship to take them off.

Later the derelict was picked up by the Vinland and taken into harber at Hampton roads, where she lay while the salvage question was being settled.

The Baxter is one of the Deering fleet of Bath, Me., and was built at Essex, Mass., in 1999. It is stated the damage to the vessel is not extensive and she selling at high prices.
